FROM ROSECRANS' ADVANCE.

Stevenson, August 24, 1863.
Sunday, the 16th, was a busy day at Winchester. The buzz of preparation kept the camps alive, and the streets of our quiet, modest city swarmed with officers, soldiers, and citizens on the qui vive in anticipation of a move. It is surprising with what systematic omptness, an army being at ease, with every eparation to make to expedite a march, puts self in perfect readiness to move; seemingly not a thing left undone that could insure all the comfort possible to obtain, and not a pound of valuable property abandoned. It seems impossible, with the exercise of the strictest precautions, to prevent the army from getting ome inkling of movements long before orders o prepare are issued. Darkness had scarce gun its retreat before the rising sun of the ith ere the streets were blocked by moving trains and the slumbers of the citizens di turbed by the tramp of the troops and the dull rumble of artillery wheels. The day far ad-vanced, in company with Sergeant DeBree, of the 15th Pennsylvania, which regiment held the advance, I left in the direction of the mountains that rise from the plain at a distance of five or six miles from the town. The oticeable features of the country for some istance out are desolated fields, deserted and ismantled dwellings, empty barns, silent nills, and fear-oppressed, hunger-pinched citi-

War left its trace in this beautiful valley, and, langhing at the devastation it made, sought untrampled fields to pursue the vensought untrampled fields to pursue the vengeance it is wreaking on a rebellious people.

The enemy that retreated by way of Winchester was too hard pressed to depredate, and the riches of fruits and vegetables were reaped by us. We left few fences, owing to the scarcity of dry fuel. Inviting fruits and vegetables were too tempting to leave were vegetables were too tempting to leave untouched, and the men, pressing these, saved rations and increased the "company fund." It is a glorious change for a soldier to leave the drowsy, monotonous camp for the luscious fruits of a cultivated country, yet untouched by the intrusive, inexorable hand of war. Think of it—bacon and pilot tread for peaches, apples, and green corn. Under such temptation discipline is burdensome, but the true soldier bears it and observes the law. Exemplary citizens should be exemplary soldiers. He who interprets the maxim "inter arma silent leges" into license to do that which law would punish, is not a soldier but a brig-and and a freebooter. A more orderly march, a more obedient body of men, I never saw on

Few citizens were at home. The devilish machinations of the enemy had frightened away from their homes the mother with her innocent children to wander beggars in the distant South. The rebel soldiers told the people that the Yankees were laying waste the country far and wide; that the blackened walls and rafters of every dwelling on our line of march esteated the enemy its of wards. line of march attested the enormity of our de-signs; and that women were outraged and carried captive by the common soldiery to our camps. The panic was intense. Not an un-married woman was seen in the course of our married woman was seen in the course of our journey. All have gone with the retreating army to escape the dishonor in store for those who stayed. What a spectacle that retreating army must have presented. A hungry, wornout, half-naked column of soldiers, accompanied by swarms of fleeing women and children who trudged along over the heavy roads in that rainy season climbing the diff. roads in that rainy season, climbing the diffi-cult mountains, and enduring voluntarily the privations and exposures of the camp.

The outlandish falsehoods that contributed to this exodus of a non-combative population to this exocus of a non-combative population that had never failed to receive the protection of our army, were sanctioned and propagated by many of the rebel officers. May it not be that the rebel armies need some such incentive to bravery, as invented by that shrewd leader of a barbaric tribe, who opposed the progress of the Roman legions.

progress of the Roman legions.

Learning by experience that the disciplined valor of the legions would in time reduce his tribe to degrading vassalage, the leader of the barbarians having painted in the rude but expressive elequence of his native tongue, the orrors of Roman slavery, to which they and their wives and children would be subjected, if the invader were not turned back, rallied every man for the final effort. Ranging the woman and children in the rear, he awaited

e Roman advance. When threatening defeat inclined the barbarians to turn and fly, there, rending their hair and wringing their hands in agony, and exhorting their husbands and sons to stand firm, stood the women of the tribe to stay the retreat. New energy nerved the barbarians, and, throwing themselves upon the serried ranks of the legions, drove them back. The Confederacy is doubtless retiring her armies to that famous last ditch, and the women are to be used to encourage the troops in that last bloody struggle for independence.

I reached our train at the foot of the moun-tain. Pressing along by slow and tedious ad-vances, between the wagons and the fences, where lay the wearied teamsters resigned to refreshing slumbers, I began the arduous ascent. The train was guarded by the 10th Ohio, headquarters guard, and the brigade of Col. Post, of General Davis's division. I cannot imagine a more laborious work at this season of the year than the dragging of a train of heavily ladened wagons up this serpentine mountain road, obstructed by huge rocks and not training ledges, which often present a perprotruding ledges, which often present a per-pendicular front of three or four feet. All the way from the base to the summit these annovng ledges and obstructions impeded our pro-

The manner of dragging up the wagons was to attach a rope to the rear of the wagon, car-rving it around the bed, and as far as the lead les of the team. As many men as co placed at the ropes were detailed for the work, and, with a hip hurrah and loud cheers that rang through the mountain groves, the men and mules bend earnestly to the work. If the effort succeeded, the most vociferous cheers announced the fact, and another wagon rolled p to be dragged over the rocky barrier. assing the summit, we found that the enemy had blocked the declivitous descent by rolling buge rocks into narrow defiles and felling trees over difficult portions of the road.

[Correspondence of the Louisville Journal.] NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 17, 1863. 'Tis a bright and beautiful morning in August, and, while the atmosphere is rather warm for comfort, the health of the city is most remarkably good. But in a few hours the vertical rays of the sun will be a terror to all out door creation, more especially to that portion which dates its experience in a tropi-portion which dates its experience in a tropical latitude with the present summer.

I have just returned from a ramble over the city and levee—the grand quay where King Cotton exercised his powerful sceptre in days and years agone; where thousands, ay, millions, of bales of the snowy staple were shipped to all parts of the world; where barrels and hogsheads of the saccharine innumerable rolled and from which countless thousands. olled, and from which countless thousands profited and the nations of the earth became nriched. But how different were my houghts from those a little over two year ince—from the days when I stood upon tha levee and surveyed for miles in extent the wealth of the South, her great staples which gave her rank and importance everywhere. My mind deeply reflected on the results of this dreadful war with its long list of human horrors and almost wholesale destruction of property and commerce. Where erst were seen the finest models of steamboat architecture, stretching for squares in length, the capacious cabins of which swarmed with human freight, and whose hulls and decks were crowded with our valuable productions, there now could be seen but; few miserable specimens of the monarchs of the mighty Mississippi, and those so woe begone by absence of life and trade as to in spire the thought of their presence but t sadly remind us of other more prosperous an glorious days. From the chimneys of but on did the smoke ascend, and her decks wer crowded—not with the wealth of trade, bu crowded—not with the wealth of trade, but with men whose emaciated frames and crippled limbs were damning evidences of dire calamity. They were about to return to homes that were once of comfort and happiness—nomes they left in health and strength to return in sorrow and infirmity, one minus a leg, another an arm, while all were more or less marked by the diseaseful ravages of camp and field. Yet beneath their sunburnt brows and shrunken lineaments there beamed camp and field. Yet beneath their sunburnt brows and shrunken lineaments there beamed the spirit of joy that they were once again to see their own dear homes and receive the cares and caresses of father, mother, brother, and sister. Perhaps they thought if "twere then to die," the knowledge of having served their country bravely, gloriously, and successfully, were reward the amplest for all the dangers past and trials endured.

Along the vast length and breadth of the levee my eyes wandered and searched but to rest on vacancy. Scarcely a box, barrel, hogshead, or bale were to be seen. Above the few steamboats the tall masts of several vessels towered toward the sky, some altogether of

Below the steamboat wharf were a number of small sailing craft, all about them as seemingly inanimate as their own lifeless prows, while out in the stream, moored at convenient distances apart. lay the mighty men-of-war, the ships of the United States, of France, and of Great Britain, with their huge guns pointing and frowning darkly and eminously upon this seemingly God forsaken

I paused upon the river's brink and contemplated the mighty stream upon whose bosom the thousands of richly-laden argosies were wont to ply, carrying wealth and comfort to thousands of homes, enriching the cities upon thousands of homes, enriching the cities upon its banks and the nations of the world. I soliloquized—and is this mighty stream again open to commerce and trade? Will this market and emporium again teem with the products of the great West? Will the people of every State again be borne upon the placid bosom of this stream, social and friendly in interconverse and the stream of th tercourse as of yore, and happy in the prospect f accumulating gains?
Ah, I sorrowed, deeply sorrowed in the thoughts these questions conjured up-of the time required to establish our former relations of brotherhood—for the creation of a market for supplies, and the recovery of capital wherewith to operate. I could not but think of the ruined and disheartened merchants, of of the plantations deserted and going to decay, of the almost total lack of growing crops of cotton and sugar, without which the trade and wealth of the South is as nothing. Weary and sick of my own thoughts, I betook myself from this desolation of ruin and wandered through several streets of the city until my attention was riveted to Carondelet—that once busy mart of the cotton trade—where the lordly dealers in the staple counted their millions from the exhibition of samples alone—upon whom the planter drew for his supplies in advance of pro-duction and sale—that street, upon which seemed to hang the wealth and destiny of naons! And what was there? Scarcely a sign uld be seen above those ponderous doors to ll of habitation or business—closed, desert-i, the office furniture carted off and sold uner the hammer of the confiscation auctione ursuing my way, desolation and abando ment was met at every step and turn-hotels converted to hospitals, princely palaces the abodes of Provost Marshals, and other officers—crowds of poor laborers thronging around the steps of the City Hall or Quartermaster's offices, awaiting payment for services rendered—negroes in the garb of American soldiers in squads, companies, and reciments deers in squads, companies, and regiments de filing past some designated spot—others loiter-ing or sauntering about as carelessly and in-dependently as though the world was made for their enjoyment. Ah, me, what a

But perhaps the truthful picture I have drawn may sconer than expected give place to one of brighter realization. Perhaps the now deserted estates may, like a few already cultivated under the artest of the control of rated under the protection of the Government valed under the protection of the Government, find enterprising capitalists to undertake their care and management. Perhaps, too, of those who have abandoned them many ere long will return to their allegianceand the protection and promotion of their own interests. But all this requires time. Meanwhile, the chief elements in the movement of commerce in this quarter are deficient and trade for a great length of time comparatively dead.

It is indeed true that there are immense quantities of cotton, sugar, and molasses se-creted in the interior of Louisiana and Mis-sissippi—removed from the banks of the river beyond the reach and knowledge of any except the owners. Should events be favorably demonstrated, these may be all brought to light and swell the list of reviving busines for a time; and but for a time, if the absence of production is suffered to allow matters to 150 back to the same dull standard.

I sincerely trust that many weeks will not elapse before I can give you more encouraging elapse before I can give you more encouraging prospects from this quarter. At present would be false to the people of the West did I encourage them to embark in trade for which but a very poor market could here be found. If, as believed, a few weeks will find larvey very large, portions of Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama reclaimed to the old flag and peace and order once more prevail, then, indeed, a great outlet will be thrown open to the accumulated goods in this market and rapid depletion give place to the productions. rapid depletion give place to the productions of the great West. Already the few steamboat arrivals have prevented further ship-ments thither by sea, and what trade in breadstuffs and provisions this market will require will be borne almost entirely adown the Mis-

the State to the Union fold.

The intention of Lieutenant Wood was to surprise the gunboat and kill or capture the crew and then put to sea as a pirate. In case the boat was well provided with stores and ammunition his wagons could return to Richmond. If anything was needed he had all that mond. If anything was needed he had all that was requisite with him.

Every preparation has been made for the success of the expedition, and the men armed with rifles, pistols, and cutlasses. On Sunday he force was divided, 64 men to go with ieut. Wood, the balance to remain with the wagons.

Sunday night a party set out in boats and soon reached the neighborhood of the gunboat. Instead of surprising the crew, however, the rebels themselves were surprised.

When within 300 yards the gunboat was sud-enly illuminated, and such a deadly discharge poured into their boats that only Lieut. Wood and four men escaped.

The prices of the necessaries of life have still further receded in New Orleans in consequence of continued arrivals from above. Communication with St. Louis and other points is now considered quite regular.

Gen. Banks has recently issued two important orders: one directing Gen. Butler's assessments to be enforced against parties who subscribed to the loan raised to defend New Orleans against the U. S. authorities, and the other directing the banks of the city to pay other directing the banks of the city to pay over to the Quartermaster's Department all moneys in their possession belonging to regis-tered enemies or those convicted of rendering aid and comfort to the enemy.

mns of the New York World: GENERAL COOMES.—The presence of this distinguished gentleman at the Conference of Opinion recently held at Rochester in relation on national affairs is an incident that has its SHIRTS, association with other, calmer, perhaps better, days. If, in the truth of the philosophy of the progress of this round earth the old is ever better than the new, the shuttle that weaves our years has flown across the checkered web fast indeed since the time when General Coombs avouched the cause and possessed the friendship of Henry Clay. His own State was certain to give its suffrage for the greatest man of its history, and he devoted himself to the canvassin New York—laboring faithfully, urging eloquently—a brave and earnest man. History can to this hour afflict or entertain itself in the calculations of the loss or gain by the fact that General Coombs was fated to see New York turn its back on Ashland. we are in the struggles and convulsions of the present; we need not make the hour deep-er by anticipating the sombre, if it shall be sombre, of the future, even by mantling it with the truth of the past. It has its evil and that evil has its sufficiency. If Mr. Clay had been the President of these United States these States might never have even in the

No man stood more strongly on the border than did Clay. He was by nature a soldier, and our most philosophical President, Madison, wished to place him in the service in 1812. He was a statesman, not outside of the people—no coid Cabinet man—but rather at the head of the great army of the commonalty, or if that word can be misunderstood, the comrade suppli il8 j&b&w if that word can be misunderstood, the commonwealth. He despised an abstraction and scorned a fanaticism. He desired himself to rule uninfluenced, but thrust aside the idea rule uninfluenced, but thrust aside the idea of a governing class of men—a living, moving conservative—a restrained Democrat. Such a man was presented to the suffrages of the people in 1844 and—defeated.

Does General Coombs place his hand on the hot caldron of public affairs again after nineteen years of fierce result, and believe that the best of counsel will receive audit? If he does he errs. Power hears no voice of coun-The government (call it king or president) hears willingly and attentively only praise, flattery, adulation. At the interchange of sentiment respecting the duty of the citizen, in the brief interview which has just terminated at Rochester, the presence of General Coombs was the marked event. He had no right to make any error in judgment, for a school of intense experience must have impressed its lessons deeply on his wont be abandoned.

Beauregard expressed his determination to hold it to the bitter end, and thought it might be done by erecting temporary fortifications. The enemy's fire is directed between Sumpter and Wagner.

But, so long the associate and friend of Henry Clay—remembered so kindly for his service to him—the attendance of Gen. Coombs at any gathering of the people, either by convention or by crowd, is significant. Amid the voices of war, when was it ever nown that statesmen were found with brain and soul so large as to view clearly the teach. and soft so large as to view clearly the teachings of wisdom and justice? In our own later time, two monarchs did pause, and taked a peace into being; but the one had the memory of Solferino vividiy behind him, and the other saw the Four Fortresses clearly before him. We are still in our old camp, waiting for orders to march. When those orders will be given it is impossible to surmise; meanwhile we are resting and "champing upon the bit." we are resting and "champing upon the bit."

In one of my late letters I told you of the superstition of Colonel Sedgewick's "good man Friday." I am sorry to have so tragical a denouement to add to that sketch as the death of the negro, who so firmly believed that "it was bad luck to move a cat," but it is nevertheless true that while Friday was bathing this evening he was seized with the cramps, and was drowned before assistance could be rendered him. This is the fourth case I have recorded of presentiments of death. If many more fall under my observation I shall turn Presbyterian and believe in the doctrine of predestination, and such a belief cannot but add to a man's courage, for if he firmly not but add to a man's courage, for if he firmly supposes he is destined to die at such a time, and that nothing can save or prolong his life beyond that period, what need he care for bombs, round shot, or canister? Wilder amuses himself occasionally by throwing a few shells into Chattanooga. Beyond this we have no stir in camp except now and then a fight, when two or three are gathered together to do honor to the "Apple Jack," which may be called a "spontaneous" production of the Cumberland Mountains, and may tion of the Cumberland Mountains, and may be found flowing freely in nearly every cornfield in the country. A similar vegetable production (or concection) is the mountain distilled peach brandy. This is very abundant likewise, and has the quality which age bestows to recommend it, and, as a natural consequence, if such articles grow in the cornfield and well in from the cares around camp. fields and well up from the caves around camp, soldiers will find them, and, worse than that, they will use them. Strange, isn't it?'

I was amused at a three line notice you between them that they have the strange of the strange of the strange. I was amused at a three line notice you bestowed upon our regiment not long since.
True, said lines were more than complimentary, but why be so chary of your kind word.
We all know how you feel toward our regiment, and, consequently, we said that your

The deeds of the 2d are histori-cal, and, "when this cruel war is over," it will cal, and, "when this cruel war is over," it will indeed be a high honor to have been a member of this regiment. The officers and men of the regiment all think that, Sedgewick has been slighted a little, inasmuch as we have no hesitancy in saying that the man who is fitted for the command of this old veteran regiment is in every way fitted for the position of a brigade servery dealers. ade commander, especially one who so ofter commanded this brigade, and who, as Nelson said, "did some of the most artistic fighting he had ever seen in front of Corinth" Why need I prolong this lette: ? reach of medical aid, we would say:

TUESDAY, SEPT. 1, 1863.

On Saturday next the voters of the ity of Louisville are to decide the question of ne city loan of $600,000 of thirty years' bonds the Louisville and Nashville Raffroad Company, for the extension of its Lebanon Branch Danville. The act of the Legislature passd at its last session authorizing the loan, and the ordinance passed by the City Council and the ordinance passed by the City Council and pproved by the Mayor, have been published FRESH GOODS! or the information of the tax payers who are to decide for or against the loan. It is hardly ecessary to repeat the arguments we have so equently used in favor of the extension of he Lebanon Branch toward the productive and consumptive region not now in railroad aired additional force, however, from the act that military necessity has been added to he requirements of business in calling for a Increased Facilities for Manailroad from Danville in the direction o Knoxville, East Tennessee. This extension will enable our city to be nearer to a direct ailroad connection with the upper coal fields of itizens is whether the credit of the city can be -added thirty-three per cent to our manufacturing afely made. There can be no doubt that the facilities, and now hope to be able to fill all orders roposed extension will render the main road for SHIRTS more promptly. nd its Lebanon branch more remunerative nd accommodating to the public. The earnngs of the Lebanon branch for the last fiscal ear were over $90,000, and six per cent inerest on the loan contemplated will be $36,-00, which renders it certain that the branch vill be able to pay the annual interest on the oan from its earnings, for they must be maerially increased by its extension. The nnual application of a small sinking fund for the purchase of the bonds would redeem hem within the thirty years, and the present earnings of the branch reduce to a certainty he practicability of setting apart such a sinkng fund to pay interest and principal, so that he city will never be called upon to advance single dollar.

Our city is the largest stockholder in the oad, and can always secure a board of competent and prudent directors to control it. This s an additional assurance that if the city lends ts endorsement to the company, the company | NEW STYLE MILITARY HATS AND will pay off the bonds at maturity and always protect the interest as it accrues. There is, herefore, no probability of any tax being levied; it will not be whife the road pays, and we cannot anticipate any state of affairs which will prevent it from paying. Should such a thing occur, however, there is a mortage which covers three times the value of the loan. Thus, after the most full and free nvestigation of the facts, we can see no risk n making the loan, and we therefore hope the vote on Saturday next will be in its favor with great unanimity.

The phrase "there's music in him" sed to be distinctive and descriptive of some culiar social good quality in the person of whom it was spoken. But Dr. Haughton has written a book on a new theory of muscular action, and finds a musical vibration in a contracted muscle, which he says produces the note C C C or D D D, giving thirty-two to thirty-six vibrations in a second. That, we suppose, is a muscular trill. The Doctor, who is an F. R. S., asserts that the heart gives the same musical tone as other parts of the body, quivalent to certain results in the lifting of weights, he calculates that the average day's work of the heart is equal to the lifting of one hundred and twenty-one tons through one foot of space. This is a valuable discovery, and the man who can adapt this motive power to practical use will make a name as famous | Photograph & Ambrotype Apparatus, as Archimedes, Newton, or Fulton. Just to think of a young man possessed of that secret and desiring to draw a young woman toward his heart when the traction of its muscle is so powerful and irresistible! We await further developments with impatience. It is astonishing how a latent rinciple or property is known before it has been materially developed. Thus seaweeds were used as a remedy for scrofula before it was discovered that iodine could be obtained from their ashes. In the same manner the musical notation of the muscles has evidently been suspected before Dr. Haughton explained its existence. Thus a bottle-holder to a pugilist will scream out, "give him 'ell, Sam," evidently intending to hint that Sam should throw in a musical vibration to the top note of his muscular action. The prize ring which is the gamut of the new science has its staff of lines and spaces; the boxer has his stops, and a violent blow, it is universally known, will give its recipient a singing in the head. Perhaps as the falling apple suggested gravitation to Newton, a good thump on the cranium has furnished the clue which conducted Haughton through musical mazes to his amazing musical discovery. We live in a progressive age.

BOARD OF TRADE .- The monthly meeting of the Board of Trade will be held this evening, at the hall of the Mechanics' Institute, on Fourth street. Subjects of general interest will be discussed, and it is earnestly hoped there will be a large attendance. The opportunities for doing good to business men are not to be impaired by the scurrility of rebel sympathizers or the opposition of those who regard themselves as too loyal to make an affirmation of their lovalty.

We verily believe there are some men in this Confederacy who, if they had tails, would tuck them between their legs every time they heard that the Yankees were advancing.

Chattanooga Rebel.

If the Chattanooga Rebel doesn't soon tuck its tail between its legs, the only reason will be that it has ne'er a tail to tuck.

What is to be settled by this contest is the fact that this country cannot be divided.

Democrat. Let your uo-more-men-and-no-more-money principle be carried out, and you will very soon see whether this country cannot be divided-shivered into a dozen miserable pieces.

It is announced that John H. Savage is elected to the rebel Congress from the Nashville District. The public would probably like to know where the voting was done, who the voters were, and whether the savage Savage would like to make a visit to the district he expects to represent.

If negroes are as good as white people, why did the Creator not make them alike? Ohio Crisis. We don't think that negroes are as good as white people, but, if women are as good as men, why didn't the Creator make them alike? The Democrat says, "where there is no practical remedy, there is no wrong." Where a horrid murder is committed, there is "no practical remedy," but is there therefore "no The Charleston Mercury denounces

THE SECOND KENTUCKY .- "Old Soldier," reerring to a notice of his noble regiment inted in this paper a few days ago, charges with being "chary of kind words." The famed old Second needs no eulogy from Its deeds of valor are known to the ld, and are written in letters of resplendent tness upon the pages of our nation's hisory, and their glory shall never fade while his Republic stands. Each member of it, fficers and privates, has a place in the great triotic hearts of their countrymen which ime, with all its wondrous changes and obvious power, cannot obliterate. Colonel sedgwick, the youthful commander, has renered his country signal service on many a lood-stained battle-field, and has thereby won o himself the love and confidence of every merican citizen. "Old Soldier's" gallantry, oo, is not less conspicuous, and has chalnged the admiration of every one of Kenucky's true sons. We repeat that the Second entucky, the pioneer regiment from our tate, needs no words of eulogy from us.

THE STATE FAIR.—We understand that it is he intention to enter ponies for premiums at he State Fair. They will be rode around the ing by youngsters, and are already being ained for that purpose. This will be enjoy-sport. The sight of young lads riding the ring mounted upon the backs of ir little steeds fully caparisoned, will be mething new and novel, and will doubtless late the little fellows very much. We look or lively competition. Get your ponies ready, bys, and make a manly trial for a victory.

THE DRAMATIC OPENING .- Our theatres pened last night and were generously susained. At the Louisville the Ghosts of Case Conway was produced. It is Monk Lewis's lay of the Castle Spectre, a dramatic tale full mystery and absorbing interest. The meanical arrangements were of course somehat deficient, but the illusion in the spectral enes was complete, and will improve on petition. We noticed many of our scientific en in attendance, anxious to see the effects f the magic mirror. ACCIDENT .- On last Sunday morning a col-red woman, employed at a boarding-house n the coror of Market and Seventh streets, me gunpowder in a stove for the pure of cleaning the pipe of soot. After waita short time, and supposing the powder not ignited, she again opened the stove to re-light it, when it exploded, scorcher face and eyes severely—so much so as anger her life.

MILLERSBURG FEMALE SCHOOL .- The next sion of this excellent school commences on onday the 7th day of September. Federal Reconnoissance in Virginia Capture of the Brig Atlantic. Heavy Conflagration in Boston.

Later Intelligence from Europe. Whereabouts of the Pirate Florida.

WASHINGTON, August 31.

The Navy Department has received informa-tion of the capture of the brig Atlantic by the U. S. steamer Princess Royal, off the Rio Grande, Mexico. From the statement of Act-ing Master Chas. E. Late, in command of the gunboat Antonio, it appears that the Atlantic had cotton on board direct from the Texas shore, and that the Captain of the brig told him he would swear to the fact and if a prihim he would swear to the fact, and if a pr nim he would swear to the fact, and if a private interview could be granted, it would be to the advantage of the Government. The Captain's singular proceedings was, he says, in consequence of a misunderstanding between him and the parties chartering the vessel, and he says he was taken into Key West in this game Atlantic, while bound for Texas, by a U.S. vessel as a priva and laid there thirty air. S. vessel, as a prize, and laid there thirty-s ities, notwithstanding he had contraband of war on board, he escaped from them, sued the U.S. Government and obtained judgment for ten thousand dollars. He then went off and delivered his cargo, which went into Brownsville, Texas, via Matampas. The Captain of the vessel further said, "if you don't look out I will fool you again. I have been in such business a long time, having run the blockade during the Russian war, and if you are not very sharp I will get to the windward of you again." ies, notwithstanding he had contraband of

NEW YORK, August 31. Richmond papers of the 29th coatain the fellowing: Six hundred Yankee cavalry advanced up the Peninsula on Thursday as far as New Kent Court-house, and a detachment came later in the day to the vicinity of Bottom's Bridge, over the Chickahominy, fifteen miles below Richmond. At this point they exchanged a few shots with our pickets, and, it is said saveral of each side were killed and it is said, several of each side were killed and wounded. We do not think that much blood was spilled. Our pickets here, however, were driven in, but before retiring they removed the floor of the bridge, and prevented the further advance of the enemy in that direction. It is by no means certain that the Yantees designed to extend their reconnoissance this side of the Chickahominy, as they made no attempt to do so, but returned down the Peninsula. Whether they came from Williams. liamsburg or were landed from transports at the White House we have not ascertained. An officer of Gen. It vindicates the President's fame and character, and will be the key-note of the next Presidential campaign. Edward Everett has also written a letter, strangely urging the prosecution of the war. The meeting on the third promises to be an immense one. Twenty special thousand people are expected to arrive by the Chicago and St. Louis Railroad alone.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

Sec. 1. "That on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company determining to extend the Lebanon Branch of said road to Danville, Mt. Vernon, or Monticello, or some place in the direction of either of said places; or upon said Railroad Company determining to extend a Branch west of the main stem into the coal regions, that it shall be lawful for said Company to contract with the City of Louisville to lend to the Company not exceeding six hunlend to the Company not exceeding six hundred thousand dollars, in thirty year one thou sand dollar bonds, bearing six per cent interest per annum, payable semi-annually in Louis-ville, and secure the interest and principal on the branch or extension for which they may be loaned. Sec. 2. That all contracts between the Lon-isville and Nashville Railroad Company and the City of Louisville, under the provisions of the preceding section, shall be lawful and binding on said Company and the City of Louis-

And, whereas, said Company have had a the grade ascertained, with an estimate of th cost of extension, and desire to extend the same to the upper coal fields of the State, and are now engaged in the actual location of an extension of the Lebanon Branch under the above recited act, and the cost of extension may exceed the six hundred thousand dollars may exceed the six hundred thousand dollars named in said act, and as said Company have authority by their charter to issue income bonds for the payment of the additional cost— AN ORDINANCE

Appropriating Six Hundred Thousand Dollars to Construct a Railroad from Lebanon to Danville.

Be it ordained by the General Council of the City of Louisville, That the Mayor of the city of Louisville have authority, and he is hereby directed, to execute, issue, and deliver to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company six hundred thirty-year city of Louisville coupon bonds of one thousand dollars each, bearing six per cent interest, payable semi-annually, the bonds to bear such date and the annually, the bonds to bear such date and the principal and interest payable at such place in Louisville as he and the Company may agree, upon said Company entering into an obligation to the city of Louisville to pay the interest and principal of said bonds as the same becomes due, and secure the same by a mortgage upon the Lebanon Branch and said extension jointly and equally with not exceeding a like amount of the Company's income coupon bonds, to be issued to pay the additional cost of extending the Lebanon Branch. And be it further ordained, That to pay the interest of said bonds as it falls due, and the principal thereof in thirty years from the date thereof, an ad valorem tax of twenty cents on the one hundred dollars of taxable property the dates of the several assessments subject to taxation by the revenue laws of the State, is hereby levied and directed to be collected annually from the date of said bonds, provided the General Council of the city of Louisville are satisfied that the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Co. intend in good faith to pay the interest of the six hundred bonds as it becomes due, and retire said bonds as they shall ma-ture, and that said company have the means of doing so. The right is reserved to suspend the collection of all or any part of the above tax, and renew the same at pleasure, and pro vided further, that it be made a condition of the mortgage to secure the payment of said bends, that if at any time the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Co. shall fail to place the city of Louisville in funds sufficient to discharge any instalment of interest on said bonds ten days before the same becomes due and and the city may foreclose for both interest and principal.

Sec. 11. This ordinance shall only take effect upon being published as required by the charter, and upon its being voted upon and approved by a majority of the qualified voters of the city of Louisville voting thereon at such time as the General Council shall hereafter provide by resolution, as prescribed in article 6, section 11 of the charter of Louisville. ASTROLOGY. Look Out! Good News for All! THE NEVER-FAILING MADAME ISABEL IS NELL is the best. She succeeds when all others have failed. All who are in trouble; all who have been unfortunate; all whose found hopes have been and happy marriage. She is therefore a sure depondence.

It is well known to the public at large that she was the first and she is now the only person in this country who can show the likeness in reality, and who can give entire satisfaction on all the concerns of life, which can be attested and proved by thousands both married and single, who daily and easerly visit her. To all in business her advice is invaluable. She can fortell, with the greatest certainty, the result of all commercial and business transactions. Madame Snell is a bona fide Astrologist that every ene can depend upon. She is the greatest Astrologist of the nineteenth century. Some ladies may be a little timid, though they need not fear, for she practises nothing but what is recencilable to philosophers; in fact a single visit will satisfy the most fastidious of her respectability, moral rectitude, and of the purity of her profession and practice. All interviews are strictly private and confidential; therefore come, one—come, all.

SEP Prices reduced to suit the times. Ladies one dollar; gentlemen two dollars. neem need satisfy, also the place while they will be most fortunate. Every person who cannot get long in this world and has bad luck, should be in consessession of her Horoccope and get her written opin.
